

Tina Curiel-Allen

UC Davis Student, Xicana/Boricua Poet and Writer

Tina Curiel-Allen is a Xicana/Boricua poet and writer, and formerly incarcerated. She is currently in her last year as an undergrad student at UC Davis, studying Xicanx Studies with a focus on Social Policy. She is the co-founder of Beyond the Stats at UC Davis, a student organization for formerly incarcerated and system impacted students, and the main writer and editor of their Beyond the Stats zine. Being both personally and generationally affected by mass incarceration, and addiction, Tina is a community organizer, activist, and abolitionist. Her work has been published in multiple zines and in Teen Vogue. Self-determination, compassion, and reflexivity are her guiding principles.
